Dear Sir or Madam,

The economy should be at the service of man.

It is with this aim that A FAIR ECONOMY is being published.

EUROPE should create an organisational system that will allow sustainable human development. As you know, liberalism, with its competitive market, has invaded the world. Its ability to create wealth appears unlimited.

But the more it expands, the more equality recedes: the rich everywhere get richer and the poor comparatively poorer.

Should we resign ourselves to this state of affairs? Should we give up imagining a society that is both more liberal and more equal? Are liberty and equality incompatible?

Marx told us: “Men create their history but don’t know they do.”

We can react right now, consciously reshape our societies and make politics noble again.

The Basic Income brings this progress within our grasp. By breaking the link between the production of wealth and its distribution, it opens up a path towards a new, more harmonious world, in which we can progressively, together and democratically, select new, transparent, evolving, revisable rules of sharing and thus move from savage liberalism to fraternal liberalism.

In this way we shall build a sustainable and human world with a FAIR ECONOMY.

That is the aim of Yoland BRESSON’s book, of which this is an abridged version in PDF and an outline below.

You will find this summary in French and English on www.vivanteurope.org

Yours sincerely,
